

LECTURE ON SOVIET UNION HIGHLIGHTS NATIONAL UNIVERSITIES WEEK

One of the highlights of this year's National Universities Week will be a talk by Visiting Professor Ilya Gerol, Foreign Affairs Editor of the Ottawa Citizen. Gerol will speak on "The Soviet Union: Transformation or Collapse of the Empire" on Tues., Oct. 17 at 7:30 p.m. in Theatre 3C00.

This will be the first of three Distinguished Visiting Professor Lectures given by Gerol. (See "Coming Events" for details.)

Gerol has a great deal of experience in journalism and first-hand knowledge of the Soviet Union. He obtained a PhD from the University of Moscow. Gerol served in the division of the Ministry of Youth in the USSR and worked as a speechwriter in the Kremlin before coming to Canada in 1979. He is the author of two books, The Threat (1982) and, most recently, The Manipulators.

Gerol is currently teaching two courses at The University of Winnipeg: "Contemporary Soviet Union" and "Regional Basis of Conflict."

FALL CONVOCATION REPRESENTS THE START OF A NEW ERA

For graduates at this fall's convocation on Oct. 22, the awarding of degrees represents the beginning of a career or further studies.

For The University of Winnipeg, this particular convocation is also a beginning. It symbolizes the start of a new era at the University as Dr. Marsha P. Hanen is officially installed as President.

According to Marilyn Lockwood, Coordinator of Events and Facilities, the inclusion of an installation ceremony will definitely add to the number of distinguished guests in attendance and to the "pomp and pageantry" of the program.

"The installation ceremony, like convocation, is bound by tradition and governed by protocol. I think it will be quite impressive," said Lockwood.

Many of the "who's who" of Winnipeg have been invited to join the platform party: The Honourable Jake Epp, Manitoba's senior Member of Parliament; The Honourable George Johnson, Lieutenant-Governor of Manitoba; His Worship Bill Norrie, Mayor of Winnipeg; The Honourable Len Derkach, Minister of Education; and Louis Melosky, Chairman of the Universities' Grants Commission.

Lockwood noted that the entrance of the Lieutenant-Governor will be accompanied by a royal salute, adding to the formality of the afternoon.

Also in the platform party will be leaders of Manitoba's other post-secondary institutions as well as former presidents and chancellors of The University of Winnipeg.

The installation ceremony will begin with a swearing in of the President Elect by University Chancellor John Bulman followed by the robing by Board of Regents' Chairman Gordon McKinnon and senior faculty member Gerald Bedford. Then the new President will deliver her convocation address.

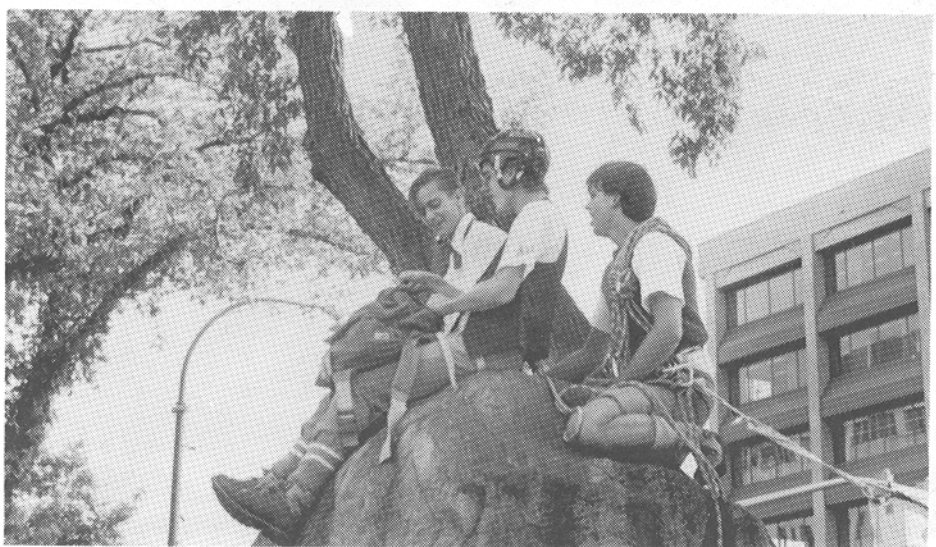

After Dr. Hanen's speech, greetings will be extended from several groups including

The United Church of Canada, Government of Canada and Association of Universities and Colleges of Canada.

Welcoming remarks will also come from the internal University community: Ed Byard, Faculty Association, Nancy Latocki, Support Staff, Ahmed Gommid, Students' Association, and Carolyn Rickey, Alumni Association.

Finally, representatives of post-secondary institutions from across Canada will greet the new President with a handshake and, in some cases, a certificate.

Dr. Hanen invites all faculty and staff to attend the Convocation and the reception that will follow.

Alpiners Jergin, Hans and Gunter were on top of the world, despite their last place finish at this year's Great Rock Climb on Sept. 18. The winners were Mark's Mutant Mountain Men with a time of 16.22 seconds.

ALCOHOLISM AND PANIC ATTACKS

Panic attacks are the subject of recent research by Professor G. Ron Norton of The University of Winnipeg Psychology Department. For several years, Norton and his colleagues have been looking at the behaviour of non-clinical panickers, those who are not receiving treatment. Recently they have been researching the relationship between panic attacks and chemical dependencies, in particular, alcohol abuse.

What are panic attacks? David Barlow defines them as instances of "fear gone awry." During a panic attack, fear, a normal anticipatory mechanism, occurs without appropriate stimulus and manifests itself in extreme somatic symptoms, such as difficulty breathing, racing heart, chest pains or dizziness. Sufferers often describe the sensation in terms of "going crazy" or "having a heart attack," and Norton estimates that 10 to 15 per cent of the population may experience such attacks regularly.

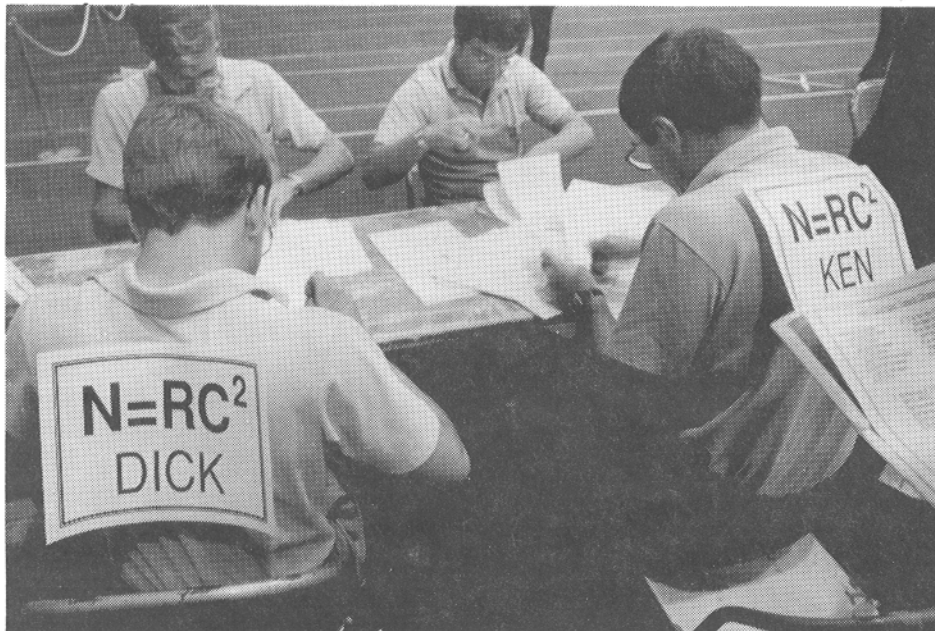

In their most severe form, panic attacks occur as agoraphobia. Agoraphobia is not so much a dread of public places as a fear of having a panic attack. Sufferers begin to avoid situations associated with the attacks, and the problem can quickly escalate into a self-fulfilling debilitation. Treatment of the illness must thus address not only the attacks themselves, but also the avoidance patterns established by the patients.

Some panickers try to alleviate their problem through self-medication, most commonly with alcohol. One study by Norton and his colleagues revealed that 84 per cent of panickers used alcohol to try to prevent or reduce their panic attacks. Another study, comparing alcoholic panickers with alcoholic non-panickers, found that panickers began drinking at an earlier age, drank in more situations, and were more concerned with and actively monitored their drinking behaviour, perhaps revealing a greater concern with their own psychological states. Panickers were also more likely to drink in situations similar to those related to agoraphobic fears.

The relationship between panic attacks and alcoholism is one that Norton is hoping to pursue. Such research will undoubtedly affect our current methods of treating alcoholism and perhaps redefine our own preventive measures against alcohol abuse.

PROFESSOR FROM ENGLAND ENLIGHTENS THE FRENCH REVOLUTION

William Doyle, Professor of History at the University of Bristol, England, will speak on "The Enlightenment and the French Revolution" on Tues., Oct. 10.

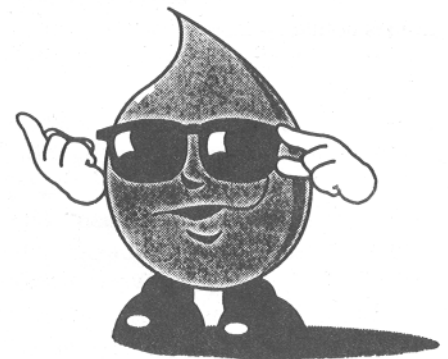

Doyle is the author of five books and several articles and book reviews on the Ancien Regime and the French Revolution. Among his books are The Parlement of Bordeaux and the End of the Old Regime (1974), The Old European Order, 1660-1800 (1978) and The Oxford History of the French Revolution (1989). One of his thought-provoking articles was entitled "Was there an Aristocratic Reaction in Pre-Revolutionary France?" which was published in Past and Present (1972).

Before accepting the Professorship at the University of Bristol, Doyle taught at the Universities of York and Nottingham. He has been a visiting professor at the University of South Carolina, l'Universite de Bordeaux III, and l'Ecole des Hautes Etudes en Sciences Sociales, Paris.

His visit to Canada has been made possible through the courtesy of the British Council. Winnipeg alone will have the privilege of hearing all three of the lectures he will be delivering in Canada.

See "Coming Events" for details on Doyle's lecture at The University of Winnipeg

BE A RED CROSS BLOOD DONOR

With all the hustle and activity of our busy lives, we may forget that there are people in hospitals who urgently need blood. By taking the time to donate one unit of blood at the Red Cross clinic set up at The University of Winnipeg on Tues., Oct. 24 and Wed., Oct. 25, you can give as many as four people new hope. Won't you help? Remember, the need for blood never stops.

GRADUATES OF ADMINISTRATIVE STUDIES PROGRAM FIND SUCCESS

Three years ago, Eileen Hildebrandt was a secretary for the Manitoba Health Services Commission who felt her career was going nowhere fast. Now, about to assume a new role as supervisor of office services, Hildebrandt has only positive words for the Certificate Program in Administrative Studies (CPAM) offered through the Continuing Education Division at The University of Winnipeg.

Her story is a familiar one. The mother of two teenagers and always active in community volunteer projects, Hildebrandt decided it was "time to do something for herself." She became one of the 27 students who graduated last June. Many of these graduates indicate that promotions or reclassifications at work are a direct result of their participation in CPAM.

What may be equally important to participants' success is the increased confidence and self-awareness garnered from these courses. Hildebrandt elaborates: "I did poorly in high school and felt really that maybe I was stupid. Taking courses at Continuing Education helped me prove to myself and to others that I was capable. No one offered me new responsibilities because I was enrolled in the program, but because of the knowledge I gained and the confidence I had to do the job. It also takes a great personal commitment to take on the extra load of studying in the evenings."

Valerie Anderson, a secretary for Continuing Education and a recent graduate of CPAM, agrees. "It was really tough going, sometimes I was at class three nights a week. I was very happy when it was over - the first thing I did was sign up for another class."

Susan Rankin, Seniors/Degree Credit Program Officer for Continuing Education, says CPAM is a direct response to requests from individuals, government and business sectors. Red River Community College and the University of Manitoba train individuals for positions in middle and upper management, while CPAM prepares students for supervisory jobs in lower management. Currently, about 200 students are enrolled in CPAM courses, and Rankin says these high numbers reflect "the positive recognition and loyal student body CPAM has built up over the past few years."

CPAM offers a broad curriculum, consisting of 300 hours of non-credit courses in communication skills, management skills, systems analysis and organizational strategem. Core and elective courses are priced at an average of $190, not including textbooks and materials.

CPAM has proven to be an effective training tool in today's rapidly advancing workplace. But according to Anderson, this is not the program's only strong point. "I matured a lot with it, it made me stronger and more self-aware. It broadened my horizons not only at work but also in my personal life."

Pianist Anton Kuerti will perform on Fri., Oct. 27 at 8 p.m. in the Winnipeg Art Gallery. Kuerti is considered by many to be Canada's most distinguished pianist on the international scene. His program will include his specialty, Beethoven, as well as Schumann. See "Coming Events" for ticket information.

Health FOCUS ON FOOD

The Health Services Program at The University of Winnipeg is planning a special theme for each month. In October, the focus is on nutrition. The program concentrates on a different question each week:

Week 1 - How healthy is your diet? If you'd like find out, meet the nurse on Wed., Oct. 4 from 12:30 to 1:30 p.m. in Room 3C14.

Week 2 - What is healthy eating?

Week 3 - Are you preoccupied with your weight? The film "Fear of Fat" will be shown on Wed., Oct. 18 from 12:30 to 1:30 p.m. in Room 2L17.

Week 4 - What is "Heart Smart"?

TO THE RESCUE

Anyone interested in taking a Red Cross emergency first aid course or heart saver CPR course should call the health nurse, Lynn Crocker, at 786-9496. Courses are now being organized for October. The first aid course (8 hours) is $32.00 and the CPR course is $22.00.

FACULTY TEAM GAINS REVENGE

In the 40th annual classic baseball game on Thurs., Sept. 21, the faculty team gained revenge for the one-run defeat of a year ago, the only defeat of the 80's for "those who teach."

Before the game, the situation seemed bleak as no less than nine of the faculty regulars were missing: Ray Mikulik (at a conference), Carl Ridd (teaching), L. Siemens (on leave), P. Tittenberger and Ian Lark of Media (on other commitments), S. Coppinger (other commitment), J. Richtik (unavailable), D. Anderson (pulled muscle), and R. Farquhar (traded to Ottawa in the off-season).

But the team re-grouped, and with no substitutes available, everyone present played the full nine innings, including Dean McIntyre (back after a two-year absence) and Neil Besner (English), who made his first appearance as a player and batted 4 for 5, scoring twice. After falling behind by 6-1, faculty rallied to win by 22-13, scoring in every inning but the 4th.

The students produced a solid team, played well together and were led by sparkling performances by Damon Rondeau and Mike Koch-Schulte, who both went 5 for 5 at the plate, and Kimberly Hope, who played third base and batted 3 for 5. The trio scored 10 of their team's 13 runs. Hywel Lowe was the starting pitcher, assisted by others as the game advanced.

For the faculty, six players produced four hits each, led by Lauze, Todd and Loeb, and Bedford, owing to the absence of both Mikulik and Anderson, pitched the entire game. Mary Young, as usual, filled her role as catcher with solid effectiveness. The faculty, with the win, takes an eleven game lead in the series.

UNITED WAY IN ACTION

The Department of Recreation and Athletics is offering one free season's ticket to all University athletic games to those who donate or pledge $180.00 ($15.00/month) to the United Way. The ticket will be good for all home games except the Wesmen Classic and post-season play.

NEW LECTURE SERIES EXPLORES GERMAN- CANADIAN EXPERIENCE

A new series of public lectures and seminars at The University of Winnipeg will focus on the German-Canadian experience. The range of topics will include both literature and history with a focus on the immigrant experience since World War I.

Vic Batzel, Chairman of the History Department and coordinator of the series, said, "The idea of a series of related events on a single theme was deliberately chosen to allow members of the German-Canadian community and those interested in its immigrant experience to follow it up in a coherent manner."

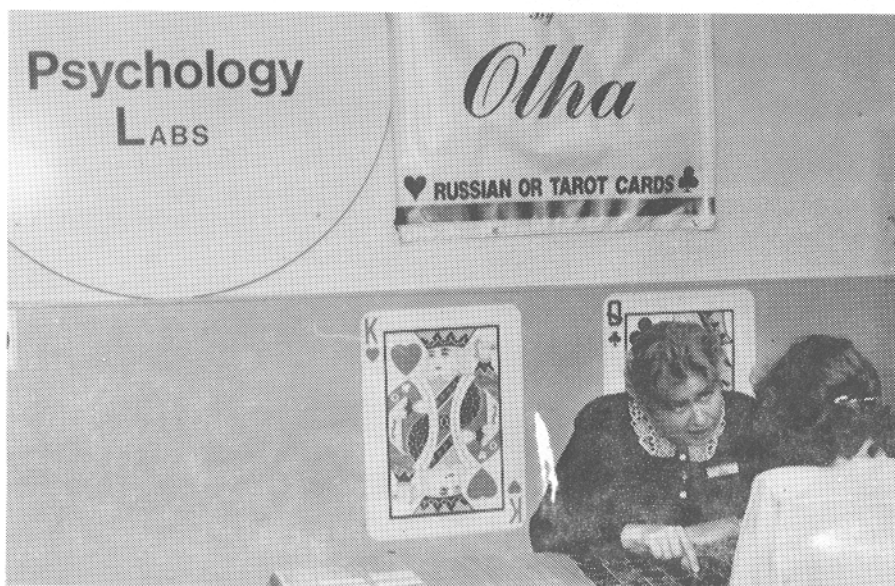

The series will begin with Don Tolzmann of the University of Cincinnati speaking on "German Heritage Studies in the Americas" on Wed., Oct. 11 at 12:30 p.m. in Room 1L10. Tolzmann will emphasize the growth of academic and popular interest in the topic in North America. This will be followed on Fri., Oct. 13 by a public lecture by Professor Peter Liddell of the University of Victoria on "Settlement Patterns [of German settlers] in Western Canada" at 12:30 p.m. in Room 1L10.

The series will continue through October and November. (Watch "Coming Events" for more information.)

The University of Winnipeg is sponsoring this series in cooperation with the Minister of State, Multiculturalism and Citizenship and in conjunction with the German Canadian Congress of Manitoba.

CATCH UP ON DEPARTMENT CHANGES

- Hatem Howlader has taken over as Chair of the Mathematics and Statistics Department. Ofra Kessler and Terry Visentin are new faculty members in Mathematics and C.T. Leung has joined the department as an Instructor in Business Computing. Lynn Batten has resigned and is now the Chair of Mathematics and Astronomy at the University of Manitoba.

Students were looking into the future at the Psychic Fair, a student orientation event held in the 4th floor Buffeteria on Sept. 19.

BIOLOGIST HOPES NEW FISH FEEDER CATCHES ON

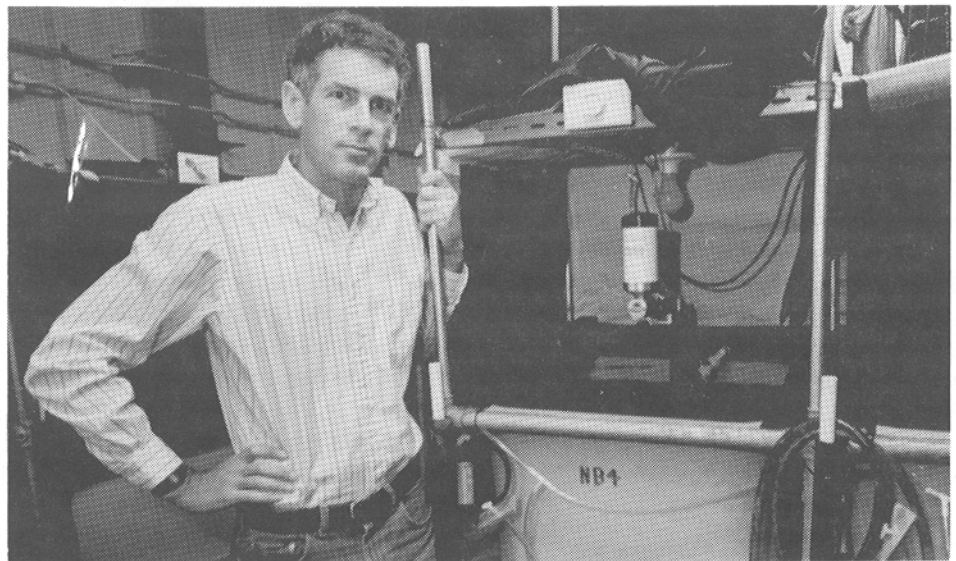

University of Winnipeg Biologist Ric Moodie is hoping a new invention will get a nibble from entrepreneurs in Manitoba. The bait is the Rockwood fish feeder, a system that Moodie and his colleagues Nancy Loadman and Jack Mathias of the Freshwater Institute believe is the key to raising walleye hatchlings in captivity.

According to Moodie, the Rockwood feeder (patent pending) could raise walleye to help satisfy a large market starved for fresh fish. Moodie said that walleye, also known as pickerel, is probably the most important freshwater fish to the economy of the Prairies. "It's the key sport fish," he said. "And the consumer demand for pickerel for their fry pans exceeds the supply. Stores just can't get enough of it."

But because of the walleye's very finicky and unusual dining habits, most hatchlings haven't been able to survive more than a few days in a tank. Without Moodie's special feeder, the fish end up eating each other or starving to death.

Moodie explained that the walleye's preference for food of a specific size and amount and available at a certain water level complicates the feeding process. The researchers' attempts with manufactured food, commercial fish feeders and live food have all been unsuccessful.

This led to the design and building of a new fish feeder by Gavin Baird with the help of Gundars Reinfelds, both of the Technical Services Department at The University of Winnipeg. "We created a feeder that releases just the right amount of food at the appropriate time intervals," Moodie said. "The key is in the delivery. If you can't deliver the food to the fish properly, the food can't do its job."

With the new Rockwood fish feeder, Moodie and Baird have now entered the business world of patents, product development and marketing. As Moodie said, they are "feeling their way in the dark."

They now have temporary patent protection for the Rockwood feeder and are trying to make a deal to manufacture it. At the same time, the researchers are testing a second feeder. Moodie believes that this second version will be more versatile and cheaper to manufacture.

Meanwhile, Moodie is waiting for that nibble from a prospective manufacturer. "I want people to realize that the technology is right here, right now and it would be great if some Manitobans could take advantage of it," he said. "It would be a shame if the technology went somewhere else."

CAMPUS NOTEBOOK

- Garin Burbank, History, has published an article, "Governor Reagan and Academic Freedom at Berkeley, 1966-1970," in The Canadian Review of American Studies, 20:1 (Summer, 1989), pp. 17-30.
