MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT

Work on Campus Development and Futures Report Highlights Summer

For me, a new academic year always brings with it a sense of excitement about new possibilities and renewed energy for facing the challenges that are inevitable in universities in these times. I hope that you have all managed, over the summer, as I have, to find some time for relaxation, for enjoyment of family and friends, for the things that give you pleasure and sustenance.

The summer has brought some significant physical changes to our campus - classroom improvements, renovations to Collegiate labs and improvements for Physical Plant that will make available some space for Theology. The major project has been the Library rooves and courtyard enclosures, which will be completed during the fall with, we hope, minimum disruption to our regular activities.

The Report of the President's Committee on the Future of the University will be available soon, and we will be arranging to have its recommendations considered as soon as possible by appropriate bodies. All matters of an academic nature will go to Senate, and I hope that we can proceed quickly to institute the curriculum review which, in my view, is an area which presents us with enormous opportunities for careful examination of what we do, and for focussed development in accord with clear goals.

Some of what emerged through the Futures process was of an administrative nature, and we have been able to take steps to implement some important changes. Thus, both University Relations and Internal Audit are now reporting to my office, and I have arranged to have George Tomlinson (Chemistry) seconded on a two-thirds time basis as Planning Officer. Initially, his attention will be directed toward institutional analysis and communication, and computer enhancement, as these appear to be two areas most in need of clear direction and development.

Search committees to fill several senior administrative positions will need to be established as soon as possible. This is a very important matter for the University, and one to which I shall be devoting some considerable attention.

I remain concerned about the financial situation of the University. We have had to make some very difficult decisions in order to balance the 1991-92 budget, and this situation is likely to persist. We have made a strong case

NEW YEAR, NEW LOOK

In Edition is starting the new academic year with a new look. We hope you find this design, by Ian Lark of Media Services, to be more attractive and easier to read. Warren Schuetz and Kelly Emslie of Printing Services will continue to do the layout, but they will be using a new Pagemaker system. That should add "pizzazz" to our pages.

In Edition will also become an environmentally conscious publication this year as we move to recycled paper in the near future. We ask that you keep the cycle going by feeding your In Edition to the Paper Project when you're finished reading it.

In response to last year's readership survey, In Edition promises to feature more faculty and staff profiles. Through these articles, you'll become acquainted with many people on campus - finding out who they are and what they do. We'll also keep you posted on plans for celebrating the University's 25th anniversary in 1992.

As usual, we ask that you keep us informed about your coming events as far in advance as possible. Please call us with your comments, suggestions and story ideas, too. Your contributions are the key to making In Edition a timely and interesting publication for the entire University community.

New Student President Wants More Participation

Zonibel Woods, President of The University of Winnipeg Students' Association for the 1991/92 academic year, brings a winning combination of experience, enthusiasm and commitment to her new job.

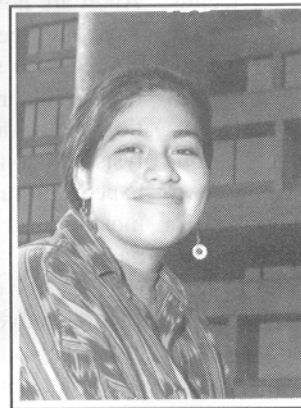

One of her primary concerns is getting students more involved in campus activities. During last March's election she kept hearing how students were apathetic. "But," she explains, "I felt it was not the students' fault." This situation is created, she suggests, not because of disinterest on the part of the students, but from a lack of information and encouragement. "I discovered during the election," she says, "that many students were unaware of just what the Students' Association could do for them." Woods notes there are more than 20 recognized groups in the University that could benefit from more student involvement, and there is no shortage of students who have a lot to offer.

Low voter turnout at university student elections is widespread, Woods points out; the national average is around six or seven percent. Yet, the most recent University of Winnipeg student election saw a turnout of around 14 percent. It seems Woods' enthusiasm is contagious.

A major goal of her term in office is to see a racism policy in place at the University. Education, she believes, plays an important role in race relations issues. Bringing in speakers and working with the First Nations Council are important steps, she says, as is the establishment of a committee to work on the issues.

She has always been involved in student activities, particularly in the area of multiculturalism. In 1985, declared Year of the Youth, she was President of the Immigrant Youth Organization in Edmonton, Alberta.

Accountability and accessibility are key words that pop up in conversation with Woods. "We want to represent all students," she stresses, "and to keep channels open to work with all groups. This is a job you learn by doing."

Zonibel Woods is the new President of The University of Winnipeg Students' Union. See story inside.

In Memoriam

KATHERINE JANE DUCKWORTH

The University community is saddened by the death of Katherine Jane Duckworth, wife of Dr. H.E. Duckworth, President Emeritus of The University of Winnipeg. Mrs. Duckworth passed away on Aug. 23, 1991, after a long illness.

Mrs. Duckworth will be remembered especially for the strong supporting role she assumed during her husband's presidency from 1971 to 1981. She was very involved in the entertainment aspect of Dr. Duckworth's position and was a member of both the Women's Auxiliary and Women's Association. In all her activities, Mrs. Duckworth brought intelligence, grace and style to The University of Winnipeg.

Roof Repairs Result In New Study Space

The Centennial Hall Library courtyards were under re-construction this summer.

Repairs in progress on the leaky Library roof.

The almost completed repair and renovation work to the Centennial Hall Library has resulted in an unexpected bonus that will give students and the Library an additional 1,200 square feet of study space.

According to John Law, Vice-President (Admin.), the original plan was simply to replace the rooves and to repair the damage caused by their deterioration. However, in the course of the repairs, it was realized that without any additional expenditure two of the open courtyards could be covered over and space could be incorporated into the Library.

Law says the larger study area inside the Library will have a 20' x40' skylight, while the smaller space will also have a skylight and will be accessible from outside the Library. "Previously," says Law, "the space had been under-used. We've not only solved the problem of the leaking roof, but we've made better use of the square footage within our existing space."

Although the repairs will continue beyond the scheduled Sept. 1 completion date, the delay is not expected to inconvenience students or Library staff. Law points out the major work has already been done. Rooves are on and floors are in; only outside and finishing work remains.

Predicting a completion date was difficult, he adds, as the University had never undertaken a project like this before. Some re-design in the slope of the rooves and changes in plans for the courtyards took additional time. "PCL Constructors have done an outstanding job," Law states.

While Centennial Hall has been the focus of attention during the summer, Law notes that other changes have been made: new structures in the Psychology Nursery; upgraded classrooms in Manitoba Hall; and the upgrading of the locker rooms and teaching space in Wesley Hall.

In Memoriam - Guenter Max Theodor Weiss, 1953 - 1991

Guenter Max Theodor Weiss, Associate Professor of Statistics, The University of Winnipeg, died in a tragic automobile accident near Wawa, Ontario on June 24, 1991. He was returning to Winnipeg at the end of his year-long sabbatical at the University of Western Ontario, London.

He was born on June 17, 1953 in Walsum-am-Niederrhein, Germany, and migrated to Canada with his parents in 1956. After graduation from Elmwood High School, Winnipeg, in 1971 he went to the University of Manitoba and graduated from the Department of Statistics with BSc Honours (first class) in 1975, MSc in 1978, and PhD in 1983. He made the Dean's Honour list three times in a row, 1973-1975. Guenter will always be remembered as one of the finest students of the Department of Statistics, University of Manitoba. He taught a variety of courses from 1978 to 1983 while pursuing his graduate studies in the department. After completion of a PhD, he worked for the University of New Brunswick for one year, 1983-84, and joined The University of Winnipeg in September, 1984.

His contribution to research and exposition were of great value to the discipline of Statistics. His knowledge in the field of statistics and computing was broad and deep. He amazed his professors and his peers with his ability to quickly understand and master new and difficult areas. His PhD thesis supervisor was Dr. James Fu. The title of his PhD thesis was "A large deviation study of consistent estimation of a translation invariant location parameter." The major results from his PhD thesis appeared in a paper published in the Canadian

Journal of Statistics entitled "Local Rates of Convergence for Consistent Estimators of Location of Translation Families," Vol. 13, pp. 317-324, 1985. His research articles appeared in many other journals including American Statistician, Communication in Statistics, Journal of Applied Statistics, Journal of Statistical Computation and Simulation, Statistische Hefte, and Sankhya. His research has been supported by NSERC from 1984 onward.

Dr. Weiss was an enthusiastic member of the Statistical Society of Canada (SSC). He used to look forward to attending the annual SSC meetings. He made a lot of friends in the statistical community through these meetings, as he was easy to know. His straightforwardness, honesty, and kindness helped him to make friends. He was also a member of the Statistical Association of Manitoba (SAM), and the American Statistical Association (ASA). He held the positions of Secretary, Vice-President, and President of SAM. He also loved to attend the Symposium on Interface as he loved statistics and computers. Since 1987 he attended and presented papers in each of the Symposia on Interface with four papers appearing in four consecutive proceedings.

A Guenter Weiss Memorial Scholarship in Statistics has been established by the Department of Mathematics, The University of Winnipeg, in his memory. Donations to the scholarship may be forwarded to Brian Daly, Director of Alumni Affairs and Advancement Projects, University Relations. Tax receipts will be issued.

PARKING ISSUE DEMANDS A LITTLE RESPECT

The next time you are tempted to stop your car beside the door for "just a few minutes" or park in another University lot - don't.

According to Lynn Jones, Assistant to the Vice-President (Admin.), faculty and staff who park in the wrong lot inconvenience those who are assigned to that space. This, she said, can lead to confrontations and hard feelings for everyone involved.

"Sometimes, people just don't think," she said. "If they realized they were putting someone else out, they might pay more attention and only park in their assigned space."

"Many people don't think about the consequences," added David Shakespeare, Director of Security at The University of Winnipeg. His department must devote a considerable amount of time to checking cars - time better spent, he said, on preventing and dealing with campus crime.

In the past six months, Security Services has issued about 300 warnings for parking violations. Some individuals have received up to 30 warnings. Sixteen cars, including two staff vehicles, have been towed.

"We have more important things to do on campus," said Shakespeare. "A lot of our time is wasted on policing this problem."

Jones noted that the violations mean extra costs for all University employees who use the parking facilities. Special vouchers must be issued when lots are full due to inconsiderate parkers. The extra expense is passed on through increased parking fees for everyone.

"Respect thy neighbour's parking spot" should be the first "commandment" of parking for University employees, said Jones. It would save everyone time, money and inconvenience.

Board of Regents Passes New AIDS Policy

The University of Winnipeg's Board of Regents passed a new AIDS policy at the June meeting.

The policy governs all members of the University community, including students, employees, contracted service employees, and visitors to the campus. Its purpose is "to lessen the fear and misunderstanding surrounding Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome (AIDS), and to ensure that all individuals who have tested positive for the Human Immune Deficiency Virus (HIV) or who have AIDS receive fair and equitable treatment at The University of Winnipeg."

According to University Health Nurse Lynn Crocker, the need for a policy was identified about four years ago by the provincial Post-Secondary Education Committee on AIDS. As chair of the Health Sub-Committee of the Workplace Health and Safety Committee, Crocker helped to develop The University of Winnipeg's policy.

The new document illustrates the University's commitment to the prevention of STDs (sexually transmitted diseases - specifically AIDS) through unrestricted access to current information. In addressing the reality of the disease in the community and workplace, the AIDS policy states, "The University shall recognize and respect the rights of its employees and students."

The enrolment, admission, or expulsion of students, as well as the hiring, promotion, or dismissal of employees are areas targeted for protection from unreasonable discrimination. So long as an individual is able to meet performance standards, no employee or student with HIV infection or AIDS will be restricted from working or from pursuing their studies.

The policy also addresses the sensitive issue of confidentiality: "An individual's right to privacy shall be respected. Any personal medical information regarding HIV and AIDS shall be held in confidence."

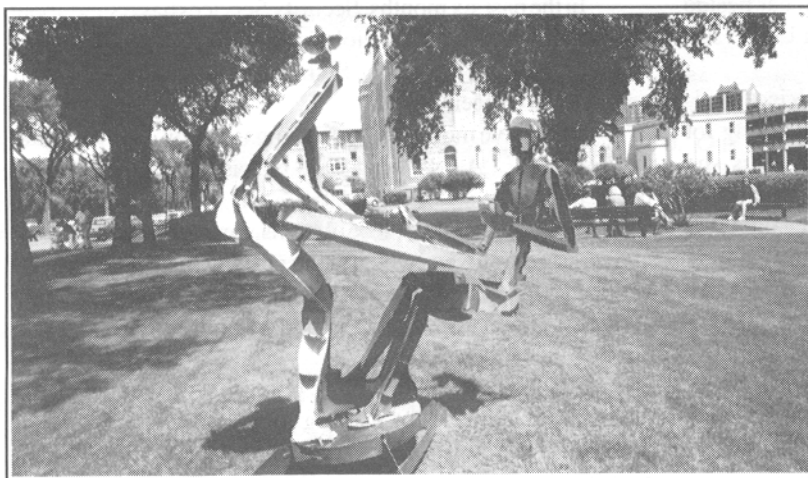

Crocker says the need for a formal policy has taken on increased emphasis in recent years. The committee's efforts resulted in a three-page document similar to the AIDS policy at the University of Toronto. Crocker notes that across Canada there are AIDS policies which range in depth and comprehension from a single paragraph to several pages. Many campuses continue to explore effective ways to educate students and personnel.

Crocker shares the health industry's concern for the lack of awareness and rampant misinformation that clouds the AIDS issue. However, she believes creating a policy is an important first step to preventing and understanding the fatal disease.

Education programs will also pick up momentum this year, says Crocker. Beginning in September, two campus coordinators, salaried by grants from the federal and provincial governments, will recruit and train student peer educators. These educators will work on a volunteer basis to provide University students, faculty and staff with current information on AIDS.

Crocker encourages all members of the University community to get the facts. Frank and complete educational materials are available through the University's Health Services Department in the basement of Manitoba Hall.

The "Card Players," by Winnipeg artist Andrew Beck, found a temporary home on The University of Winnipeg's front lawn. The sculpture was part of this summer's "Gallery on the Avenue."
