Message from the President

Summer Brings Board and Administrative Changes

As we begin a new academic year, I want to say a special welcome to those of you who are new to The University of Winnipeg and, of course, to welcome everyone back to campus for the beginning of the fall/winter term. I hope that, over the summer, you have all had, as I have, some time for relaxation, and for pleasant times with those close to you.

As always, June brought some changes in our Board. I would like to thank the now past chair, Margaret McPherson, for her outstanding dedication and support. Margaret gave her time and talents in a most generous way, and I know you will join me in expressing our appreciation. I welcome

Bob Purves, who has assumed the chair, the Board members who have kindly agreed to assume leadership roles on the committees, and last, but certainly not least, the new members of the Board.

Over the past few months, the group of colleagues with whom I work most closely has undergone considerable change. Graham Lane joined us on Aug. 1 as vice-president (finance and administration), and we welcome him most warmly. Katherine Schultz has taken on her responsibilities as associate vice-president (research and graduate studies), and Herb Mays is working in his new capacity as associate vice-president (student

INFORMATION SYSTEM PROJECT RECEIVES BOOST

Following the award of a $120,000 grant from the Winnipeg Foundation in support of a new student information system earlier this year, the Universities Grants Commission recently announced a computer systems development allocation to The University of Winnipeg of $110,000.

These funds, consisting of $50,000 towards development of the student information system and $60,000 towards the development of the financial system, will enable the University to advance its plans to move away from its present dependence on the CDC computer, reports George Tomlinson, assistant to the president (planning).

"The additional funding from the UGC will allow us to address the migration of two of the three major systems currently resident on the CDC in this fiscal year, without any new demands on our already strained op-services). I am delighted to have their expertise, and they will be communicating their plans directly.

I am very pleased that George Tomlinson will continue as assistant to the president (planning) for a further two-year period, with a review to take place in 1995-96. George's main areas of focus will be on University-wide planning and technological development. He is currently leading the Student Information System project, funded by the Winnipeg Foundation and a special grant from the UGC.

The vice-president (academic), the two associate vice-presidents, the dean of arts and science, the three associate deans, the planning officer, and the University secretary will all be teaching this year as part of their University responsibilities.

University Relations will also be experiencing change this fall, and we will be undertaking a reorganization of duties, with the aim of finding ways to serve the needs of alumni, fundraising and public affairs even better than in the past. As a start to this restructuring I have asked Joan Anderson to assume the role of senior development person. In the President's Office, we plan to continue with the reduction of one-half position instituted last year.

Probably the most important issue facing us this term in relation to the future of the University is the set of challenges issued by the provincial government in its response to the Roblin Report. A joint Board-Senate Committee is being formed, and it will begin meeting in September. I expect that it will provide information and engage in consultation within the University in the early stages of its deliberations. There is no doubt that the opportunity to articulate our priorities as a University is one that we should make the most of, and the work of this committee will be one way of doing so.

We are at present putting the finishing touches on budget allocations for this year. As information becomes clearer about enrolment numbers over the next couple of months, we shall be preparing our budget revision for the Board for its November meeting. Meanwhile, we have received the UGC's request for budget estimates for 1995-96. A new format for the presentation of the numbers has been instituted, partly, we believe, with the intention of allowing comparisons across years and across institutions. There is still an absence of clear definitions, but there have been several discussions for clarification with the Deputy Minister and members of the UGC staff, with at least some promising results.

Although the difficulties of the past few years are by no means at an end, I am feeling optimistic about an improved understanding in government of our situation, and a sense of renewed energy for tackling some of the challenges. I hope you are as well.

*Marsha Hanen, President
The University of Winnipeg*

erating budget," he said. "It is encouraging that the UGC has been able to respond to this long-identified need."

The new systems will run on a recently-purchased DEC Alpha-AXP Server, and will be structured as fully-relational databases operating under Sybase database management software. The student information system software has been purchased from National Institute for Administrative Systems, Inc. (NIAS); a final decision on the purchase of a commercial financial software package will be made shortly.

Wanted: Story Ideas

It's convocation time again, and we would like to feature a few members of this fall's graduating class in the Convocation Bulletin. If you know of a graduand with an interesting story to tell, please call the editor, Lois Cherney, at 786-9134.

Tomlinson will continue to have overall administrative responsibility for the information systems project, while Farhad Nowroozyani of Technical Support Services will serve as project manager. Rick Oleski (formerly of the Office of the Dean of Arts and Science but seconded to the President's Office for this project), Pat Shipman (Technical Support Services), and Andrew Kingsley (President's Office) will be consulting extensively with the major system users in order to develop a comprehensive data model for use by other Technical Support Services personnel in the design of the database. A parallel process for the financial system will begin shortly, in close collaboration with the Controller's Office.

The short-term goal is to have a functional registration system in place by early 1995. Longer range plans include the development of timetabling and scheduling facilities, on-line class lists and grade submission, degree audits, and a variety of other services, including alternative registration modes (telephone, online, and in-person).

Forward Into the Past

A three-day conference, Sept. 23-25, sponsored by the Manitoba Archaeological Society, will be held at The University of Winnipeg. The conference, which is open to all, will feature new techniques and discoveries and how a variety of different disciplines can contribute to our understanding of the past.

Friday (Sept. 23) sessions will explore computer applications. The Saturday (Sept. 24) presentations will include researchers from allied disciplines from as far away as Texas and New Brunswick. Sunday (Sept. 25) will consist of talks by archaeologists who will discuss their current research in and around Manitoba.

To round out an exciting conference, Saturday night's banquet at Lower Fort Garry will feature an address on the whisky trade in western Canada.

A Canadian Dictionary, Eh?

Mounties, loonies, back bacon, eh? Although these terms are familiar to most Canadians, they are rarely listed in any dictionaries.

To fill this void, Katherine Barber is working with a team of experts to compile the new Canadian Oxford Dictionary — a general dictionary which includes Canadian words.

Barber is a lexicographer and the editor-in-chief for Canadian dictionaries with Oxford University Press Canada. This month she is returning to her alma mater—The University of Winnipeg—to give two special lectures related to her work:

- Mon., Sept. 26, 12:30, Room 3C14, The University of Winnipeg - Tuques, Tourtières and Téléromans: Gallicisms in Canadian English. (Gallicisms are words that the English language has borrowed from the French language. As an example, we commonly use the French word tuque to refer to a woolen hat.)
- Wed., Sept. 28, 12:30, Room 3C14, The University of Winnipeg - Sin and Jambusters: What makes Canadians Canadian; Defining Canadian English for the Canadian Oxford Dictionary.

Barber graduated from The University of Winnipeg in 1986, after winning three gold medals and receiving more than 10 scholarships during her academic career here. She worked on the Bilingual Canadian Dictionary at the University of Ottawa before being hired by Oxford.

The new Canadian Oxford Dictionary has kept Barber and her team fully occupied since 1992 when they set up shop in Toronto and began gathering and researching the 150,000 proposed entries. The project is expected to be completed by 1998.

Employee Juggles Work and School

Susan Kirkwood's graduation last June capped six years of working during the day and studying for her master in marriage and family therapy at night. The University of Winnipeg admissions officer is no stranger to juggling work and school. She also did her undergraduate degree in History while working fulltime and raising two sons, both of whom later attended The University of Winnipeg.

While Kirkwood plans to utilize her degree through volunteer work for an inner-city organization and may take on a few clients at night, career objectives were not her primary motivation in taking the degree. Rather, she started with one course and found the field intrigued her.

"In many ways, I see the world in terms of people. I'm interested in what motivates people, patterns of behaviour." She plans to continue taking courses of interest to her.

Alum Receives Second Degree

Carlyle Murrell (BA '91) received a master of divinity at spring convocation.

When University of Winnipeg alumnus Carlyle Murrell (BA '91) received a master of divinity at spring convocation last June, there was a large "family" of well-wishers sharing the joy of his accomplishment.

As part of his program of studies, Murrell officiated twice weekly at St. Mary Magdalen Anglican Church. "As part of my duties I led prayers, administered communion, made home visitations to members of the parish and gave sermons both at St. Mary Magdalen and at Sparling United Church," he says. "I also played clarinet and saxophone in the church band," he adds with a grin.

His most enjoyable task, he says, was writing and preaching sermons. For one sermon, on the feast of St. Michael and All Angels, Murrell consulted History Department Chair Sarah McKinnon: "She gave me slides of medieval and renaissance angels, and very helpful background information. I used the slides to illustrate the sermon, which was warmly received by the congregation."

Murrell, who worked part-time in the Physical Plant while completing his degree, became a familiar face on campus. He hopes to continue his education at The University of Winnipeg by entering the Master of Sacred Theology Program this fall. He was recently made a deacon and is moving towards ordination as a priest in the Anglican Church.

"For me, getting this degree has been far more than an academic exercise, thanks to the guidance and discernment of special people like Dean Harold King, Mac Watts (associate professor of theology), and Sparling Church's Rev. Harold Ritchie," says Murrell. "They provided guidance, discernment and pastoral care."

UWIN Expands Courses and Coverage

The University of Winnipeg's telecourse program, UWIN, has expanded to include a full slate of first-year courses and will now reach several rural communities.

Last year UWIN was launched with three courses broadcast from campus to an urban audience. It became the only telecourse program in Manitoba to cablecast courses in their entirety and to show classroom participation to the viewing audience.

This year five first-year credit courses are being offered, making a full first-year program possible. Courses available for 1994-95:

Introductory Anthropology

Susan Hornshaw
MWF 9:30 - 10:20 a.m.

Biology and Human Concerns

Kent Simmons
Mon. 5:30 - 8:30 p.m.

Introductory Economics (Micro and Macro)

Michael Benarroch
TuTh 11:30 a.m. - 12:45 p.m.

Introductory Psychology

Manly Spigelman
MWF 10:30 - 11:20 a.m.

Introductory Sociology

This year, through the cooperation of Videon, Shaw Cable, Interlake Valley Cable Vision and Portage Community Cablevision, UWIN will also be available to several rural communities within a one-hour and twenty-minute radius of Winnipeg. These communities—Stonewall, Selkirk, Beausejour, Steinbach, Altona, Morden, Winkler, Carman and Portage—will see the classes by taped re-broadcast one week later.

For more information on UWIN, please call Cindy Lewkiw in the Dean's Office at 786-9759.

Institute Changes Name

The Interfaith Pastoral Institute has changed its name to the Interfaith Marriage and Family Institute.

The new name is a more accurate reflection of the nature of the Institute, which in addition to its counselling program offers a masters degree in Marriage and Family Therapy.

VIRTUOSI Concerts presents the season opener with the Winnipeg debut of acclaimed classical guitarist Rémi Boucher, Wed., Sept. 28, 8 p.m. at the Winnipeg Art Gallery. This is the first of eight Virtuosi concerts in 1994-95, co-presented by The University of Winnipeg and CBC Stereo.

In a period of less than 18 months he won six first-place awards in international competitions, including the prestigious Andres Segovia competition in Mallorca, Spain. He is also the subject of a special CBC-TV feature that will appear this fall on "Adrienne Clarkson Presents."

The program for Boucher's Winnipeg performance will include Bach, Sor, Castelnuovo-Tedesco and others.

The Lean, Green Office Scene

Offices today are focusing on meeting demands with the greatest efficiency, while keeping an eye on the environment.

For more than a year now, a group on campus known as Secretaries Forum has been meeting to share ideas, questions and problems with this goal in mind. The results have been encouraging:

- A revised University distribution list and improvements to accounting forms, purchasing forms and window envelopes were made.

- Formats of various forms used internally at the University (eg: performance evaluations, budget variance reports, distribution labels, etc.) were created on computer diskettes in WordPerfect format to allow data to be entered into computers rather than being completed manually.

- Ergonomics in the workplace was discussed, with suggestions from Andrea Vinci, physiotherapist.

- Information sessions on areas of the University such as special needs students, security and fire safety were presented.

- A discussion of WordPerfect 6.0 was held.

The next meeting of Secretaries Forum is planned for Oct. 5 in room 2D11 in the Duckworth Centre at 11 a.m. All interested faculty and staff are welcome.

Technical Support Services will be presenting an overview of WP 6.0 commands, and how they can best be used uniformly to update internal forms that are circulated throughout the campus.

Please let us know if you have ideas or tips on how to make an office run more smoothly and efficiently. Some upcoming topics for the "Lean, Green Office Machine" column: ergonomics, voice mail, handling cash in the office, time management. If you can add to this list, call Lois Cherney (786-9134) or Jeri Breckman (786-9175), or drop us a note c/o University Relations. We look forward to hearing from you!

This fall Health and Safety Services is premiering its new video, "WHMIS for Students."

"The video will be used as a supplement for teaching students about the Workplace Hazardous Materials Information System (WHMIS)," explains Lynn Crocker, coordinator of Health and Safety Services.

The 15-minute video was produced this summer by Health and Safety Services along with the University's Theatre and Media Services Departments. Funding was provided by the Office of the Dean of Arts and Science, Office of the Dean of Collegiate, the Biology Department and Chemistry Department.

Copies of "WHMIS for Students" are available through your departmental WHMIS coordinator, or through Media Services or Health and Safety Services.

Rockin' Again

The University of Winnipeg's 23rd annual Great Rock Climb will take place on Fri., Sept. 23 at 12:30 p.m. on the front lawn of the University.

The Rock Climb is a race against time in which teams of students, faculty, staff or alumni attempt to scale the 25-ton Centennial Rock. Each three-member team starts at the front door of Wesley Hall and is clocked-in when all members make it to the top of the Rock.

Last year's winning team was "One Little Goat" with a time of 19.57 seconds. The 1979 Collegiate alumni team continues to hold the record of 9.9 seconds.

The Great Rock Climb course is 50.33 metres (91.44 feet) in distance measured from the front door of Wesley Hall to the base of the Rock.
